
Curriculum Vitae

Alex Grzybowski

Professional Profile

Alex Grzybowski is a conflict resolution and prevention specialist with extensive experience in mediation and negotiation, stakeholder and public engagement, international and national intergovernmental relations, and relationships with indigenous people and disenfranchised communities. Mr. Grzybowski has spent the last 22 years directly assisting Governments, International Agencies, Corporations, Non-Government Organizations, and Indigenous and other Communities in finding mutually acceptable and constructive ways to resolve their differences, build new relationships and implement joint initiatives. He is routinely retained to:

- Design and facilitate constructive discussions between real and potential adversaries;
- Design, mediate and in some cases undertake negotiation processes;
- Lead multiparty complex project implementation initiatives;
- Train and coach negotiators, facilitators and mediators;
- Provide strategic advice to government and organizational leaders who are responsible for preventing and resolving conflicts.

Mr. Grzybowski brings together a broad range of practical experience with the prevention and resolution of highly conflicted situations and the development of innovative partnerships to provide ongoing support to parties in their efforts to create new and more mutually beneficial relationships.

Internationally, Mr. Grzybowski has participated in many conflict management and peace building projects around the world (Southeast Asia, Central Asia, South America, Africa, the South Pacific, Australia, and the Middle East). In 2008 he was retained as one of 7 members of the United Nations Mediation Support Unit, Mediation Standby Team and this one year appointment was renewed 3 times. As a standby team member he successfully completed assignments on issues in Central Asia, Western Sahara, Kyrgyzstan, Somalia, Iraq, Fiji, Afghanistan, and the Nile Basin. Responsibilities included:

- Advising senior UN staff including Special Representatives of the Secretary General on how best to respond to, and manage, conflicts (e.g. support for the constitutional development process in Somalia);
- Designing and facilitating conflict resolution and negotiation processes involving multiple countries (e.g. resolution of transboundary water issues in Central Asia) or internal matters (e.g. return to civilian government in Fiji);
- Facilitating effective working relationships and coordinated project implementation activities between UN agencies with conflicting mandates.
- Delivering training for UN staff and member country representatives on mediation, negotiation and conflict prevention.
- Writing guides for UN mediators and staff on conflict prevention in the extractives sector and mediation of natural resource issues.

Other notable international projects include:

- Facilitating negotiations between Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and Vietnam on implementation procedures for the Mekong Treaty as well as the permanent location of the Mekong River Commission headquarters.
- Facilitation of a Nile basin donors meeting (12 countries represented) on provision of further support to the Nile Basin Initiative which is a multi-billion dollar investment in cooperation and development in the region.

- Training transboundary water treaty negotiators on the application of interest based negotiation and international water law to treaty negotiations in the Nile Basin, Central Asia, and Jordan.
- Facilitation and mediation support to a land use negotiation between Thai government agencies, NGOs and impoverished villagers who were encroaching on National Parks in Northeast Thailand.
- Facilitating negotiation of a community health and sustainable mining partnership between a Mining company, local indigenous peoples and communities, three levels of Government, the military and a US foundation in the Amazonian region of Venezuela.

In Canada, Mr. Grzybowski has designed and mediated negotiations relating to land use, mining, oil and gas, hydropower, watershed management and water allocation, forestry, tourism, agriculture, fisheries, private land management, endangered species protection, environmental conservation and aboriginal people's rights. He has provided facilitation and mediation support to the resolution of many highly conflicted natural resource issues across Canada involving all levels of government, private companies, and Non-Government Organizations including:

- Land use and resource management plans in the boreal forest in BC and Alberta, the north and central west coast (Great Bear Rain Forest), the Caribou Chilcotin region, the Okanagan Shuswap region, the headwaters of the Fraser, the Thompson and the Columbia, and in the East Kootenay.
- An Impact Benefit Agreement between an Aboriginal Nation and a Private Energy Company regarding a 4.7 billion dollar hydroelectric development.
- Protocols between the Federal Government and the Province of BC on Fish Habitat Protection and Management.
- Protocols between the Province of BC and various Aboriginal Nations on governance, land use and economic development;
- Strategic planning amongst Aboriginal Nations regarding shared territory.
- Agreements and protocols between Aboriginal Nations, Private Corporations and Environmental NGOs.

Mr. Grzybowski holds undergraduate and graduate degrees in natural resource management and planning and has written extensively on innovative and practical approaches to conflict resolution and prevention and partnership development. He has been successfully facilitating conflict management and strategic planning processes internationally and within Canada for the past 22 years and has more than 2500 days logged in the field. His track record for assisting parties in finding common ground and building agreements is that the vast majority of his assignments result in some form of agreement, resolution or joint initiative.

SELECTED MEDIATION AND FACILITATION PROJECTS AND TRAINING SESSIONS DELIVERED

International

1. UN Mediation Standby Team. (Nov 08 to Nov 11).

Standby Team terms involved readiness to deploy on short notice anywhere in the world to assist with United Nations conflict prevention and resolution activities. Missions and specific assignments included:

- Provision of support to the UN Regional Centre for Preventative Diplomacy for Central Asia which has a mandate to assist with the resolution of international water and related resource issues. This support included more than 15 missions to the region to:
 - i. Undertake regional consultations with senior representatives, including Ministers, of all Central Asian states to gather information relevant to the Centre's strategic approach and work priorities for delivery of support to the resolution of transboundary water issues;
 - ii. Develop the Centre's strategic plan for addressing transboundary water issues;
 - iii. Deliver a seminars on International Water Law and Negotiation of Mutually Beneficial Transboundary Water Agreements and on Transboundary Water Dispute Resolution;
 - iv. Consult with senior officials, including Ministers, from all States in follow up to the International Fund for saving the Aral Sea 2009 meeting of the CA Presidents.
 - v. Facilitate an information sharing session attended by senior representatives of all 5 states and Afghanistan on opportunities for mutual gain in the energy and agriculture sectors through regional cooperation on water management in collaboration with the UN Food and Agricultural Organization and the World Bank.
 - vi. Deliver an orientation and training program for Centre staff to build capacity for provision of mediation support to the Central Asian States;
 - vii. Facilitate an agreement between all 5 CA states and Afghanistan on a Framework and indicators for an Early Warning System for Potential Transboundary Water Conflicts in the region.
 - viii. Work directly with SRSJ Jenca and Deputy SRSJ Klimtchouk on how best to support the resolution of water and related resource issues in the region.
- Preparation of a framework for dialogue on natural resource issues for the Western Sahara UN sponsored talks. This framework was adopted by the parties.
- Provision of advice and facilitation support to international agencies and Kyrgyz mediation practitioners regarding mediation approaches and coordination of mediation projects in Kyrgyzstan. Also involved delivery of mediation training to woman mediators from across the region.
- Facilitation of internal discussions between UNDP and UNPOS on the UN strategy to support constitutional development and ongoing peace and reconciliation efforts in Somalia.
- Facilitation of discussions between UN agencies on development of an Integrated Strategic Framework for UN activity in Somalia.
- Consultations with international agencies and senior Afghan government representatives to develop concrete advice to the UN Assistance Mission to Afghanistan on how best to support Afghanistan in engaging in consultation and negotiation processes regarding transboundary waters with riparian neighbours – Tajikistan, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, Iran, and Pakistan.
- Facilitation support for the UN Country Team and the UN Mission in Iraq (UNAMI) in development of a coordinated intervention plan to assist the Iraq government with implementation of integrated water resource management nationally and a strategy to address the disappearance of the marshlands in southern Iraq.

- Development of a report to UNAMI to assist their efforts to address transboundary water issues in Iraq.
 - Consultations and advice regarding the design and convening of a potential UN/Commonwealth sponsored mediation between the Interim Government in Fiji and Fijian Political Parties on the basis for a return to civilian government in Fiji.
 - Development of a Guidance Note on Conflict Prevention in the Extractive Industries.
 - Preparation of a practical guide to mediating natural resource conflicts for UN Mediators and international Agencies.
 - Preparation of internal briefing document on developments with respect to the Nile Basin Cooperative Framework Agreement and related transboundary water issues in the basin.
2. Facilitation Support to Nile Basin Donors (June 2011).
Retained by UNDP to facilitate a special meeting of foreign affairs representatives of countries that contribute to the Nile Basin Initiative.
 3. Conflict management Training for the Nile Basin Initiative (Sept 2010).
Retained by the Nile Basin Initiative and SNC Lavalin to develop and deliver a training program on conflict management to representatives of the Nile Basin countries. The interactive skills based program addressed macro and micro conflict management, the international legal context, mediation and facilitation using hypothetical simulations, real case studies and role plays. Participant evaluation of the program was very high; exceeding 85% approval of the content and delivery.
 4. Negotiation of the Permanent Location of the Mekong River Commission. (Feb – March 2008)
Retained by the MRC secretariat to facilitate negotiations between representatives of Laos, Cambodia, Thailand and Vietnam regarding the permanent location of the MRC. These services involved drafting the report of the sub-committee mandated to develop recommendations on the issue for the governing bodies of the MRC. This report identified the basis for resolution of the issue.
 5. Negotiation Skills, International Water Law and Strategic Scenario Development – Training for Water Treaty Negotiators in the Nile Basin. (December 08)
Retained by the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization and the Nile Basin Secretariat to provide training in Negotiation and Mediation skills to 40 representatives of Nile basin countries. The six day program also incorporated relevant aspects of international water law and strategic scenario development to enhance the capacity of negotiations to produce durable agreements that reflect international legal standards while also stimulating mutually beneficial economic arrangements for all of the countries.
 6. Application Of International Water Law to Multilateral Water Treaty Negotiations – Training for Water Treaty Negotiators in the Kingdom of Jordan. (June 07) Retained by the German aid organization, GTZ, to provide training to Jordanian negotiators, legal advisors and other senior officials on the relevance and potential applications of international water law to water treaty negotiations underway between Jordan, Syria, Israel and Saudi Arabia.
 7. Training for parties involved in Indigenous Land Use Agreement Negotiations in South Australia. (April 2007). Provided negotiation training to representatives of the South Australian Government, Aboriginal People, and representatives of the Mining sector.
 8. Strategic Plan For Canadian Governance Assistance to the Iraqi Marshlands (Sept 06). The Iraqi marshlands were substantially drained and poisoned by the previous regime in Iraq resulting in the devastation of the marshland ecosystems and the Marshland Arab communities that depend upon them. Subsequent assistance from Canada and other Nations has supported restoration of the marshlands and the marshland communities. Further restoration work is required particularly in the area of governance. Alex Grzybowski along with several other Canadian experts was retained by CIDA to meet with 75 Iraqi officials in Amman, Jordan, to develop a strategy for Canadian support in the governance area. This 4 day session generated a consensus based plan for Canadian investment in governance in the region.
 9. Negotiation Training for Nile Basin Countries. (January to March 2006). Assisted with delivery of a negotiation training program to 36 water treaty negotiators from all 10 Nile Basin countries in Burundi in February of 2006. Feedback on the relevance and value of the training from the participants and the sponsors was overwhelmingly positive.

10. Philippines Economic and Environmental Management Project Review (Aug - Dec 05). Retained to review progress with implementation of this bilateral project of the Government of the Philippines (GOP) and the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA). Convened and led a Review Team which involved representatives of the GOP, CIDA, and the project implementation agencies. The Team implemented a collaborative process that engaged a wide range of project stakeholders in an assessment of what the project has achieved and what the stakeholders and implementing agencies need to do in order to sustain the results. The consensus recommendations of the Review outlined practical measures that can be undertaken both locally and nationally to reinforce the successes of the project.
11. Mekong River Commission Procedures Facilitation. (December 2002 to September 2003) Retained by the Mekong River Commission Secretariat to facilitate negotiations between representatives of Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and Vietnam to develop procedures for data and information exchange and procedures for notification, prior consultation and agreement. These procedures were finalized in December of 2003. Also assisted with coordination of the process team that provided the negotiations with technical support and international legal advice.
12. ASEAN Nations Mediation Training. (January to March 2001). Retained to deliver a mediation training at the Khon Kaen University Institute for Dispute Resolution hosted for individuals involved in conflict prevention and resolution across the ASEAN Nations. The program involved 50 practitioners from 7 countries.
13. Community Sustainability and Mining in Southeastern Venezuela. (March and April 2000) Retained to provide facilitation and training to support the negotiation of partnership arrangements which resulted in: construction of a small hospital, improvements to local water systems, delivery of community health education, and collaborative work between Placerdome and the small scale miners. The negotiations resulted in partnership agreements involving 7 aboriginal and criollo communities, 3 levels of government, the military, a US based Foundation and Placerdome.
14. Tri-Sector Partnership Training Program (November 1999 to June 2000). Retained by Business Partners for Development (BPD) to assist with the development and delivery of a partnership training program to enhance the capacity to build and maintain partnerships for social investments by extractive industries. This is a clinic based program that delivers assessment, consultation, consensus building, and management skills in the field. BPD was a joint initiative of international organizations dedicated to fostering constructive partnerships between civil society, governments and mining and oil and gas companies (BPD included CARE, UK Aid, World Bank, several Mining and Oil and Gas Companies).
15. Nam Chuen Watershed Planning Project – Thailand. 1997 and 1998. Retained by the CIDA NREM project to provide facilitation support and technical planning advice to a multi-stakeholder strategic planning process for the Nam Chuen watershed in northeast Thailand. Primary issues included forest encroachment and degradation of a National Park, lack of land title and poverty. Consensus on the plan was developed in September 98.
16. Southeast Asia Forum for Peaceful Conflict Management. (1999) Retained to convene and facilitate the founding meeting of a network of conflict management practitioners from eight southeast Asian countries. This was a collaborative initiative of the Khon Kaen Institute for Dispute Resolution in Thailand, and the University of Victoria Institute for Dispute Resolution in Canada.
17. Salween Basin Planning Initiative. (September 1999) The Salween river flows from Tibet and Yunan province in China, through Myanmar and Thailand and then into the Andaman sea. Retained to facilitate workshop discussions amongst water resource experts from all three countries and United Nations water resource agencies on the prospects for collaborative management of the Salween basin. The workshop participants developed consensus on a vision for the basin and an action plan for future collaboration.
18. Myanmar - Thailand Natural Gas Pipeline. (1999) A consortium of Royal Thai Government Energy Agencies and private Corporations constructed a natural gas pipeline from the coast of Myanmar to Thailand to deliver gas to a new gas plant in Thailand. Construction of the pipeline raised a number of issues including allegations of human rights abuses in Myanmar, environmental impacts at various locations, and local community impacts within Thailand. Protests against the completion of the pipeline were staged in Thailand. In an effort to initiate a collaborative effort to resolve key issues in Thailand a representative of the Thai Senate requested

- that the Khon Kaen Institute for Dispute Resolution meet with the various parties. Retained to join the mediation team to provide strategic advice and support. The Petroleum Authority of Thailand subsequently contracted the Team to convene a cooperative negotiation process amongst all parties.
19. Khon Kaen Institute For Dispute Resolution. (1995 to 2000) In response to the growing need for alternative dispute resolution capacity and institutions in Thailand, Khon Kaen University initiated an institutional development program aimed at establishing an Institute for Dispute Resolution. CIDA provided initial funding for the initiative which involved the B.C. Commission on Resources and Environment, the University of Victoria Institute for Dispute Resolution, Pacific Resolutions, and the International Ombudsman Institute. Alex Grzybowski participated on the Canadian team on behalf of Pacific Resolutions and the Commission. After the initial CIDA sponsored activities Mr. Grzybowski continued to work with the Khon Kaen Institute for Dispute Resolution on a wide range of projects funded by local as well as multilateral agencies.
20. CIDA Natural Resources and Environmental Management Project (May 1996 to July 1999). The NREM project aimed to build the capacity of Royal Thai Government Agencies responsible for Natural Resources and the Environment to deliver sustainable management of natural resources. Key projects that Alex Grzybowski played a lead role in delivering on behalf of NREM included:
- Development of a Public Participation and Conflict Management Training program for Royal Thai Agencies responsible for Natural Resources and the Environment. This program was designed to enable these agencies to implement multi-stakeholder processes to prevent and resolve natural resource and environmental conflicts. The program delivered a key component of the participatory governance model that was central to the results of the NREM project.
 - The Nam Chuen Watershed Planning Project. (described above)
 - Development of Model Management Frameworks For Sustainable Development (MFSDs). MFSDs are designed to be developed on a provincial basis to provide integrated and strategic direction to decision makers to guide implementation of sustainable development. MFSDs are developed with multi-stakeholder participation. They were a key product of the NREM project and include the participatory governance model developed through the project.
 - Training program for developing MFSDs for Royal Thai Agencies responsible for Natural Resources and the Environment.
21. Cambodia Center for Conflict Resolution. (1995 to 1996). In response to the growing need for alternative dispute resolution capacity and institutions in Cambodia, the Cambodia Development Research Institute initiated an institutional development program aimed at establishing an independent conflict resolution center. CIDA provided initial funding for the initiative which involved the B.C. Commission on Resources and Environment, the University of Victoria Institute for Dispute Resolution, Pacific Resolutions, and the International Ombudsman Institute. Alex Grzybowski participated on the Canadian team on behalf of Pacific Resolutions and the Commission. After the initial CIDA sponsored activities Mr. Grzybowski continued to work with CDRI and the newly formed center to develop a strategic plan for the new organization and to develop and deliver training programs.
22. Urban Land and Water Use Conflicts in Sao Paulo Brazil. (Jan. 1999 to Oct 2001 and June to September 2003) Over 1,000,000 people are currently living within a watershed that provides domestic water supplies for greater Sao Paulo. Many of the settlements within the watershed are impoverished squatter communities and all of them are in conflict with the governing legal and regulatory framework which is oriented towards protecting the quality of water in the watershed. Alex Grzybowski was retained to provide training and advice on cooperative approaches to reducing the impacts on water quality from the settlements. He was subsequently retained to provide facilitation support to multi-party discussions on a new land law that would both legalize currently illegal settlements and facilitate relocations to reduce water quality impacts and health and safety risks for communities.
23. CIDA - Philippines Canada Environmental Management Project Evaluation (1999). Retained to assess the progress of the PCEEM project in Cebu and Davao. The PCEEM project's overall goal was to strengthen and enhance the capacity of Metro-Cebu and Davao City to adopt innovative government, industry and local governance systems to address natural resource management problems affecting their watershed ecosystems. The evaluation engaged key project

- stakeholders in development of the assessment results including recommendations for improvement. These recommendations were subsequently implemented resulting in substantial improvements in the future success of the project.
24. Southeast Asia Energy Project. (1996) Retained by the Khon Kaen University Institute for Dispute Resolution to help facilitate discussions between officials from Thailand, Laos and Cambodia on energy issues. Assisted with preparation and delivery of the final report for the project.
 25. Parliamentary and Cabinet Briefings - Papua New Guinea (1997). In the 1990s the World Bank was implementing a Structural Adjustment Program in PNG. The program included multilateral financing and a wide range of long-term policy initiatives aimed at restructuring the economy of PNG. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the World Bank to assist the Secretary of Finance with the development of a series of presentations for the recently elected Parliament and the new Cabinet detailing key aspects of the Structural Adjustment Program including proposed strategic priorities for the future. The presentations were a resounding success in terms of communicating structural adjustment priorities from the perspective of the Ministry of Finance officials.
 26. North American Council on Environmental Cooperation (October 1998 to April 1999). Under the North American Agreement on Environmental Cooperation, Factual Records can be prepared to investigate the effectiveness of the environmental law enforcement practices of the countries that are signatory to the Agreement (Canada, U.S.A. and Mexico). Alex Grzybowski was retained to assist the Commission secretariat with the preparation of a Factual Record on allegations that the Canadian Fisheries Act has not been effectively enforced in cases where a provincial Hydro Corporation had allegedly violated the Act. This investigation required consultation with representatives of Canada, the Provincial Government, the submitting parties, experts in the field, the Hydro Corporation and other relevant stakeholders.

Domestic

27. Liquid Natural Gas and Energy Development. (February 2012 ongoing). Retained by the Provincial Ministry Of Energy and Mines to assist with strategic energy development planning and the negotiation of impact benefit agreements with affected First Nations.
28. Columbia River Treaty. (January 2012 ongoing). Retained by the Provincial Ministry of Energy and Mines to provide advice and facilitation and negotiation support to the Columbia Treaty Review process and related dialogue between the Treaty Entities and engagement of First Nations, and stakeholders.
29. Species At Risk Consultation Facilitation. (December 2011 to March 2012). Retained by the Department of Fisheries and Oceans to facilitate consultations with affected land owners and other stakeholders on the draft Species at Risk Action Plans for two species of fish that are designated as endangered in the lower mainland. Protection of these species has direct implications for the use of riparian areas on private and public lands.
30. Collaborative Decision Making Guide. (November 2010 to February 2012). Retained by the Clean Air Strategic Alliance (CASA) to finalize a guide to collaborative decision making for resolution of air management issues building on the successes of CASA.
31. Boreal Forest Agreement Implementation. (April to July 2011). Retained by the Boreal Agreement secretariat to facilitate negotiations in the British Columbia and Alberta Regional Working Group on implementation of the CBFA in those two provinces.
32. Boreal Forest Agreement Implementation Training. (Dec 2010 to March 2011). Retained by the Boreal Agreement secretariat to train 4 regional and national working groups on effective collaboration and negotiation techniques.
33. PNCIMA Community Consultation Facilitator. (March/April 2010 and 2011). Retained by the PNCIMA Planning Office to facilitate a constructive dialogue between community representatives and stakeholders and the PNCIMA Planning Office on how communities and stakeholders can be engaged in the initiative. Sessions were successfully delivered in 9 coastal communities.
34. Conflict Analysis for Tar sands Development. (June to Oct 2010). Assisted with conflict analysis of tar sands development in terms of conflict management alternatives and precedents in other jurisdictions.

35. Impact Benefit Agreement between Plutonic Power Corporation and Homalco Nation. (April 09 to Aug 09). Retained to provide facilitation and mediation support to the successful negotiation of an impact benefit agreement between Plutonic Power Corporation and the Homalco Nation regarding development of a large hydroelectric project (4.7 billion dollar) within the Homalco territory on the coast of BC.
36. Coastal First Nations Dialogue with Environmental Groups. (Aug Sept 08). Retained by a coalition of 13 First Nations on the north and central coast and 5 Environmental groups and the George and Betty Moore Foundation to facilitate discussions aimed at proactively preventing conflicts that could arise between FNs and ENGOs in the context of their marine planning efforts.
37. Ecosystem Based Management Working Group Director. (July 07 March 09). Retained by the Provincial Government and multiple coastal First Nations (Aboriginal peoples) to facilitate and lead a team of representatives of provincial agencies, First Nations, Environmental Groups, communities, and forest companies mandated to provide information and recommendations on the implementation of EBM on the central and north coast of British Columbia (“Great Bear Rainforest”).
38. Ski Resort and Private Hydropower Mediation. (May to June 2008). Retained to mediate negotiation over a water allocation dispute between an independent hydropower producer and a ski resort in the interior of BC. The parties reached agreement on a resolution to the dispute.
39. Bella Coola Helisports and First Nations Protocol Arrangements. (June 07 ongoing). Retained by Bella Coola Helisports to facilitate and lead negotiations of protocol arrangements including revenue sharing arrangements between the company and 7 First Nation’s whose territories the company operates within.
40. Integrated Land Management Bureau and Hupacasath First Nation Protocol and Issue Resolution Process. (December 06 to March 07) Retained by both ILMB and the Hupacasath Nation to facilitate negotiation of the terms of a Protocol for effective working relations between the Nation and the agency and the steps in a pragmatic process for resolving critical land and resource use issues. The negotiators reached agreement on a recommended Protocol and implementation steps.
41. Integrated Land Management Bureau and Wet’suwet’en First Nation Consultation Framework. (December 06 to March 07). Retained by ILMB and the Wet’suwet’en Nation to facilitate negotiation of a mutually acceptable process for fulfilling the legal obligations related to Aboriginal Rights and Title which may be affected by decisions taken under the provincial Land Act. The negotiators reached a agreement on a recommended process.
42. Ministry of Forests Administrative Staff Team Building and Conflict Prevention. (March 07). Retained to provide conflict prevention training and team building support to administrative support staff that were encountering challenges in working together. The process yielded very positive results according to the staff managers.
43. Province of BC Consultations with First Nations regarding Landfills. (February to March 2006). Retained to facilitate consultations between the Ministry of Environment and the Haisla, the Kitsumkalum, the Kitselas, and the House of Spookw regarding the siting and expansion of landfills in the vicinity of Terrace and Hazelton. Many of the participating First Nations representatives and the provincial staff responsible for the process indicated their strong endorsement for how this process was facilitated.
44. East Kootenay Strategic Trench Plan Scoping. (February to March 2006). Retained by the Integrated Land Management Bureau to assist conflicted recreation stakeholder groups in developing agreed upon recommendations for coordinating planning initiatives in the Rocky Mountain Trench in the East Kootenay. The stakeholders reached agreement on the recommendations after 2 months of negotiations.
45. Fish Camps Operators - Out of Court Settlement. (April 2005 to December 2005). Retained to mediate an agreement between various fish camp operators and the provincial government regarding issues associated with sale of lease lands and outstanding arrears as an alternative to further litigation between the parties. The parties reached agreement on a settlement package.
46. Okanagan Reservoir Lakes. Retained to provide facilitation support to the resolution of issues associated with the conversion of recreational leaseholds to private lands on high elevation reservoir lakes in the Okanagan.

47. The St'át'imc Province Protocol Table. (November 2004 to Sept 2007). Retained by the St'át'imc Nation and the Province of BC to provide facilitation and mediation assistance to their negotiations on an ongoing basis starting in November 2004. During his term as facilitator Alex Grzybowski provided facilitation and mediation support to many specific agreements as well providing general facilitation support to the process. The parties reached agreement in principle on a Milestone Agreement in April 2007 that addressed land use issues, ongoing collaborative decision making and economic development and budget issues.
48. Cranbrook Recreation Management Strategy (November 2004 to March 2005). Increased use of ATVs and snowmobiles to access backcountry recreation areas has resulted in conflicts between users and impacts on the local environment in the East Kootenay. In 2004 these conflicts escalated into public campaigns and demonstrations that undermined the Provincial Government's capacity to finalize a recreation management strategy for the area. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the Ministry of Sustainable Resource Management to mediate negotiations between more than 30 representatives of conflicting recreation and environmental interests and other affected land users. After three months of intensive negotiation and mediation all parties agreed to a recreation management strategy for the area which resolved a number of highly contentious issues including conflicts between motorized and non-motorized users, impacts on alpine and grassland ecosystems and maintenance of wildlife habitats. The recreation management strategy includes objectives and strategies that separate incompatible uses and reduce impacts on sensitive ecosystems as well as establishing an initial set of Best Management Practices for recreation in the region. The stakeholder agreement was subsequently adopted into a provincial government recreation plan for the area.
49. British Columbia Pacific Salmon Forum. (March 2005). Retained by the Forum to facilitate the development of a strategic plan to achieve the Forum's mandate including workshop facilitation and pre-workshop consultation with each of the Forum members.
50. Joint Use Agreements between Tourism Operations (Sept 2004 to April 2005). Expansion of backcountry tourism operations in all regions of the province of BC is resulting in increasing conflicts between different types of tourism activities. Operators are required to develop joint use agreements to increase compatibility and sustainability where operations overlap. Alex Grzybowski was retained to mediate joint use agreements between highly conflicted heli-ski and a backcountry ski operations in Golden (September – November, 2004), snowmobile operations in Revelstoke (December 2004 – January 2005), and between heli-ski companies a cat-ski operation a hunting guide operation and 7 snowmobile operations in the Whistler area (December 2004 to December 2005). Each of these negotiation processes resulted in agreements between the parties.
51. Valemount to Blue River Sustainable Resource Management Plan. (September 2003 to March 2004). Heli-skiers and snowmobilers are increasingly coming into conflict in the mountains of British Columbia as a result of improved access and technological improvements to snowmobiles. Both activities support substantial business investments and opportunities, as well as millions of dollars in local and provincial economic benefit. The conflicts between the activities undermine the quality of these different recreational experiences and threaten the sustainability of the related businesses and economy. These conflicts have been severe in the Blue River and Valemount area. The Ministry of Sustainable Resource Management retained Alex Grzybowski to mediate discussions between two major heli-ski operators in this region (Canadian Mountain Holidays and Mike Wiegele Heliskiing) and representatives of snowmobilers from Valemount. The mediation resulted in a comprehensive agreement between the parties which provides for spatial separation of the activities and joint investment in a community development corporation to help develop and manage snowmobiling in the Valemount area. The agreement was rolled into a draft Provincial Sustainable Resource Management Plan (SRMP) and presented to the public and First Nations for review and feedback. The SRMP was revised and finalized based on the feedback. Alex Grzybowski assisted with the drafting of the SRMP and liaison with the agreement stakeholders to ensure that the SRMP was revised in a manner that both reflected feedback and still maintained their support and consensus.
52. Coastal First Nations Land Use Plan Integration Scoping. (April 2004).
The Coastal First Nations (formally Turning Point) retained Alex Grzybowski to facilitate development of an approach to reconciling the overlapping land use plans of five of the Nations involved in the organization. During a two day discussion facilitated by Alex Grzybowski

- representatives of each of the five Nations identified the areas within their land use plans where differences would have to be resolved and agreed on the principles and key process elements that would guide them towards this resolution.
53. Land and Resource Management Planning Processes. (1997 to 2003). LRMP processes are multi-party negotiation processes that address land use issues over large areas of British Columbia. The issues are complex, involving environmental, social and economic variables such as protecting biodiversity and wilderness, while maintaining community stability and economic development opportunities. Alex Grzybowski has provided facilitation, mediation and training services to assist parties in resolving these issues by agreement in several LRMP's including the Okanagan Shuswap, the Central Coast, and Lillooet. The Okanagan Shuswap process reached agreement on their LRMP recommendations in September 2000. The Central Coast Table reached Agreement on an interim plan in March 2001, which resulted in suspension of an international market campaign against coastal forest products from BC, and creation of several protected Areas – notably the Spirit Bear PA. Subsequent negotiations, also supported by Alex Grzybowski and Daniel Johnston resulted in a long-term plan for the coast. The Lillooet LRMP parties moved into a mediation process and ultimately an options approach based on “final offer selection”. Options were presented to the provincial government in March of 2001.
 54. Joint Solutions Project. Private Sector/ENGO Negotiations. (June 2000 to January 2004). Five forest companies (Weyerhaeuser, Norske Canada, Western Forest Products, Canfor and Interfor) and four Environmental groups (Greenpeace, Sierra Club, Rainforest Action Network and Forestethics) undertook a joint initiative (the Joint Solutions Project) to support the development and implementation of ecosystem based management and planning on the central and north coast of British Columbia. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the companies and ENGO's to provide facilitation and project management support to the initiative including assisting them in reaching agreement during crucial periods within the coastal planning processes (March 2001 and December 2003).
 55. Coast Information Team Implementation (June 2001 to November 2003). The Coast Information Team (CIT) was an independent body mandated to develop locally and internationally credible information and advice on Ecosystem-Based Management for land and resource planning processes on the Central and North Coast and Queen Charlotte Islands\Haida Gwaii. The CIT was established as a result of agreements between the Province and First Nations, together with a wide range of interested groups announced in April 2001. Alex Grzybowski facilitated the 2001 Framework Agreement which was one of the key agreements that established the commitment to convene the CIT as well as the Funding Agreement between the Provincial Government, Forest Companies, Environmental Groups and First Nations which provided 3.0 million in financial resources to the CIT. He also provided facilitation and management support to the implementation of key CIT projects including development of an EBM Framework, an EBM planning guide, a scientific compendium and a hydrosiparian decision tool – completion of each of these projects required consensus between scientists and practitioners.
 56. The Kitsoo Xaixais and Gitga'at Protocol and Implementation Team. (April 2001 to November 2003). In the spring of 2001 the Gitga'at and the Kitsoo Xaixais convened negotiations amongst non-government stakeholders to resolve land use issues within their traditional territories. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the First Nations and the stakeholders to provide facilitation and mediation support to this negotiation process over a 2.5 year period. The negotiations resulted in an initial Protocol, which was signed by the elected and hereditary chiefs of both First Nations and representatives of forest companies operating within the territories and environmental groups with concerns within the territories. This Protocol laid the foundation for subsequent negotiations within the Protocol Implementation Team regarding land use, forest management practices and economic development. The Team developed and negotiated agreements on proposed land use zones, a planning framework for ecosystem based management (EBM), and an approach to securing and implementing financing for the conservation commitments implicit in the new zones and the implementation of EBM. The proposed land use zones were integrated into the land use plans of both First Nations as well as the broader provincially sponsored planning processes for the area (CCLRMP and NC LRMP). The EBM planning framework was also incorporated into the FN Land Use Plans as well as being integrated into the work of the Coast Information Team (CIT) where it was instrumental to the development

- of the EBM Handbook by the CIT. The conservation financing approach provided a practical model that was integrated into the coast wide Conservation Investments and Incentives Initiative.
57. Strategic Planning and Mediation Training with Esketemc First Nation. (January to March 2001). The Esketemc First Nation live in the Alkali Lake area and were involved in the Treaty process and informal discussions with local non-First Nations communities regarding improving relationships between First Nations and Non-First Nations. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the Esketemc to assist them with internal strategic planning regarding both the Treaty process and the talks with other communities as well as to provide mediation and negotiation training.
 58. Forest Stewardship Council Certification Standard (November 2001 to May 2002). The FSC standard is an international standard of forest product certification. Alex Grzybowski was retained to provide mediation and facilitation support to negotiations between representatives of Economic, Environmental, Social, and First Nations Chambers to finalize the first FSC standard for British Columbia. The negotiations resulted in a recommended standard for the Province.
 59. Streamside Protection Regulation (January to April 2002). Issues associated with implementation of a provincial regulation requiring streamside setbacks in urban areas precipitated a multi-party review of the regulation. Alex Grzybowski was retained to facilitate the review process in a manner that would both develop consensus recommendations as well as define the alternative perspectives of the affected parties. Both of these objectives were achieved.
 60. Range land management and research near Kamloops. (May to July 2001) Research programs within Agriculture Canada and the Provincial Ministry of Forests were in conflict in the Opax\Mud Lakes area near Kamloops. Local ranchers and BC Parks were also affected. Alex Grzybowski was retained to mediate negotiations between all parties. The mediation process culminated in a long-term agreement between all parties that integrates all of their primary interests.
 61. Review of Department of Fisheries and Ocean's Participation Processes. (June 2000 to April 2001). The Department contracted the University of Victoria Institute for Dispute Resolution to conduct an independent public review of its consultation and decision making processes. Alex Grzybowski provided project management and facilitation support to the initiative and was the primary author and editor of the final report and recommendations.
 62. Federal Provincial Watershed Based Fish Sustainability Planning Framework. (2000). Retained by Fisheries and Oceans Canada and BC Ministry of Environment to facilitate committee discussions, workshops and negotiation sessions involving headquarters and regional staff from Federal and Provincial Fisheries agencies and NGO's which resulted in consensus on a planning framework for watershed based fish and fish habitat management.
 63. Federal Provincial Fish Habitat Protection Agreement Negotiations. (1998). Retained by Fisheries and Oceans Canada and BC Ministry of Environment to facilitate committee discussions, workshops and negotiation sessions involving headquarters and regional staff from Federal and Provincial Fisheries agencies resulting in agreement on a habitat protection protocol.
 64. Greater Vancouver Skytrain Development. (September 1998 to July 2000) The Rapid Transit Project Office was responsible for construction of phase one of the Skytrain in Vancouver. This included meeting all relevant governmental decision process requirements including public consultation. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the RTPO over a two year period to assist with the design and implementation of the public consultation process and to advise on various issues including meeting relevant provincial and federal environmental impact assessment requirements.
 65. Kitimat and Area Community Health Council. (January to April 2000). Retained by the Council to assess conflicts associated with health care delivery in Kitimat and to subsequently facilitate discussions on the sustainable level of services and medical staff By-laws.
 66. Watershed Restoration Program. (January 1998 to March 1999). The Watershed Restoration program was a province wide program aimed at restoring watersheds that had been negatively affected by forestry practices. Alex Grzybowski was retained by the program managers to help refine the program to increase net benefits and ease of implementation. In this capacity, Alex Grzybowski facilitated regional working discussions on program improvements, provided advice to program managers, and drafted reports and recommendations for program improvements.
 67. The Anahim Round Table. (January 1992 to March 1994). The Ulkatcho First Nation and local stakeholder groups from the Anahim Lake area requested support from the BC Commission On Resources and Environment to support resolution of local land use and forest management issues.

- Alex Grzybowski was assigned by the Commission to provide project management, facilitation and training support to the initiative. With assistance from Alex Grzybowski the parties convened the Anahim Round Table which involved 29 representatives of a wide range of resource and environmental interests as well as representatives of the Ulkatcho and the Province. The Anahim Round Table reached agreement on a comprehensive resource management plan for the Ulkatcho traditional territory. In addition, the Ulkatcho and the local forest company established a business partnership to undertake forest development in keeping with the plan.
- 68. Caribou Chilcotin Land Use Plan. (January 1992 to July 1994). Alex Grzybowski provided project management and facilitation to the multiparty negotiation (33 representatives of a wide range of resource and environmental interests including First Nations) on behalf of the Commission On Resources and Environment. The table was unable to reach agreement given a lack of policy direction regarding the amount of protected areas required in the region. Alex Grzybowski subsequently took the lead on drafting the Commission's recommended plan for the region which became the starting point for a final negotiation led by the Premier's Office which resulted in agreement on a land use plan for the region.

Selected Training Projects

- 69. Training for Land Use Negotiators Invited to the World Wildlife Fund Gift to The Earth Award recognition of the Great Bear Rainforest. (May 2007). Retained to deliver negotiation training to land use negotiators from a wide range of developing countries in Africa and Latin America who were brought together by the WWF to celebrate and learn from the Great Bear Rain Forest Conservation Agreement.
- 70. Training for parties involved in Indigenous Land Use Agreement Negotiations in South Australia. (April 2007). Delivered negotiation training to representatives of the South Australian Government, Aboriginal People, and representatives of the Mining sector. A follow up session was delivered to legal council from the Native Title unit of the Attorney Generals Ministry.
- 71. Conflict management training in Santo Andre Brazil (Jan. 1999 to Aug 1999) The Municipality of Santo Andre in Sao Paulo Brazil is taking the lead in the implementation of a multi-party process to resolve issues such as protected area encroachment and illegal settlement which are affecting drinking water supplies in the area. Retained to provide strategic advice and training to the parties on the design and implementation of conflict management processes.
- 72. Thailand Public Participation and Conflict Management Training Program (1996 to 1997). A wide range of Thai government agencies with responsibilities for natural resource management are seeking improved methods of public participation and conflict management. In response to this need the CIDA NREM project retained Alex Grzybowski to develop a training program aimed at introducing public participation and conflict management approaches and methods into internal Royal Thai Government Agency training programs. The initiative included the development of training materials, case studies and a trainer's manual as well as pilot training sessions in different locations around the country.
- 73. Natural Resource/Environmental Management Training, Thailand (1997). Alex Grzybowski led a training program design team to develop an integrated training program to support the implementation of Management Frameworks for Sustainable Development (MFSD's) in Thailand. MFSD's are a primary outcome of the CIDA NREM project in Thailand. Alex Grzybowski took the lead in the development of the facilitation training modules for Interior Ministry officials and consultants that will be tasked with facilitating MFSD development which is a multi-party, interagency planning process.
- 74. Thailand National Security Council Seminar (1999). With the assistance of the Southeast Asia fund for Institutional and Legal Development and the Asia Foundation, Khon Kaen University Institute for Dispute Resolution provided a 2 day seminar on Conflict Management to senior staff at the National Security Council as well as other Royal Thai Government agencies. Alex Grzybowski was one of two Canadian speakers invited to participate in the seminar. Alex Grzybowski presented on mediation techniques in a multi-party public policy dispute context as well as case studies from Canada and Thailand.
- 75. Bangkok Metropolitan Police Training (1996). Public demonstrations over public policy issues are common in Thailand. Many of these protests are staged in Bangkok - the center of political and administrative power in the country. The Bangkok Metropolitan Police are often on the frontline responding to these conflict situations. After several senior members of the force responsible for riot control attended conflict management training sessions delivered by Alex Grzybowski in association with Khon Kaen Institute for Dispute Resolution they requested that the training team deliver the program to all 120 police chiefs in Bangkok. The course material was supplemented with information on approaches used by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in responding to hostage taking and barricade incidents. The BKK Police Chiefs worked through the program using real cases that they have been involved in.

76. Cambodia Human Rights Committee Training (1996 and 1997). The Cambodia Human Rights Committee requested Pacific Resolutions to assemble a team of Canadians to develop and deliver a training program on complaint investigation, non-adjudicative dispute resolution, Ombudsmanship and land policy development. The Team consisted of experts in the field from British Columbia and Alberta including MP Stephen Owen, past Deputy Attorney General and Ombudsman for British Columbia, and Harley Johnson past Ombudsmen for Alberta. Alex Grzybowski developed and managed the project on behalf of Pacific Resolutions and assisted with the dispute resolution component of the training. This project was sponsored by the CIDA Southeast Asia Fund for Institutional and Legal Development.
