Please provide summary information on the process by which this report has been prepared, including information on the types of stakeholders who have been actively involved in its preparation and on material which was used as a basis for the report

The following government agencies have contributed to this report:

Ministry of Fisheries and Marine Resources; Ministry of National Planning and Human Resources Development; Ministry of Forests, Environment and Conservation, Ministry of Education and Training, Ministry of Lands and Housing.

The following NGOs have also contributed to this report:

Solomon Islands Development Trust, Solomon Islands Indigenous Peoples Organisation, The Nature Conservancy (TNC), Worldlife Fund for Nature (WWF), and Conservation International.

Please provide information on any particular circumstances in your country that are relevant to understanding the answers to the questions in this report

The Solomon Islands has not produced a National Biodiversity Strategy and Action Plan. There is a State of Environment Report (1992). There is also a National Environmental and Management Strategy that is still the blue print for environmental management in the country. New legislation have been developed and put in place at the national level. The Medium term development Strategy has been a national guide in implementation of all domestic activities. Various sectoral agencies have their own action plans/policies, which have been used or consulted in this report. Regional organisations in the South Pacific region have played a much a significant role in assisting the countries of the region in implementing global programs and legal instruments. International NGOs and other civil society organisations have also played some major role in this respect.

The regional organisations referred to above include the following: The South Pacific Regional Environment Programme, South Pacific Geoscience Commission, South Pacific Forum, Pacific Community and Tourism Council of the South Pacific, University of the South Pacific.

The international NGOs include: WWF, FIELD, Greenpeace, Conservation International, IUCN, etc

During the last two years, Solomon Islands has experienced a period of instability with the ethnic crisis on the island of Guadalcanal. This has caused a lot displacement for many people and a worsening economic situation and is a setback for conservation activities. The chronic shortage of resources caused by this worsening economic condition, therefore, could not allow the desired implementation of relevant activities or even the comprehensive review and compilation of this report.

The COP has established programmes of work that respond to a number of Articles. Please identify the relative priority accorded to each theme and the adequacy of resources. This will allow subsequent information on implementation of each Article to be put into context. There are other questions on implementation of the programmes of work at the end of these guidelines.

Further comments on work programmes and priorities

The work programmes are excellent guidance for formulation of national programmes and activities. Their development and review is a usually a time consuming task for very small islands like the Solomon Islands with very little resources, let alone national expertise. In most cases therefore, the work programmes are too ambitious for very small countries. Solomon Islands however finds the work programmes very useful in setting the direction for the themes at the national level.

There has been some co-operation with other contracting parties on Marine Biological Monitoring for indicator species for Marine Protected Areas and a Resources Survey or assessment of some terrestrial environment proposed for a conservation expansion programme. Rapid assessments and remote sensing has been used for some programmes. The National Herbarium is accessible to the Public including members of other contracting parties. Unfortunately, the facility has been a target of vandalism during the ethnic crisis. The collections on agrobiodiversity held by the national agricultural research institute were all destroyed during the ethnic crisis.

Further comments on implementation of these decisions

More taxonomy work is done in Botany than in other fields. Some needs assessment has been carried out for the herbarium including an action plan on ethnobotany. Recent staff movements and other problems related to the ethnic tension have affected the work of the herbarium. There is hardly any taxonomist in the country even though there is some bare capacity within the forestry sector. Solomon Is recently participated in the efforts to establish the regional loop (PACINET) as promoted by CAB International.

Appropriate procedures and concepts are now incorporated into key national legislation which promote sustainable development including sustainable use of biological diversity. For instance the recently passed Environment Act has a substantive section on environment impact assessment of all major prescribed developments. This will require all major developments to be subjected to EIA. This allows for assessing the impacts of developments on biodiversity. Another major example is the Minerals and Mines Act which also requires EIA on mining activities. There is also requirements in the national planning project appraisal process for integrating environmental considerations. Foreign Investment approval also requires some appraisal on environmental impacts. Resources constraints are still major factors.

Sustainable use principles are now integrated into the national policies and legislation. Strategies and programmes would have an in built requirement for sustainable use. The Solomon Is has in the past reported to the CSD most of its relevant activities under the most of the global programmes through the South Pacific regional reports. This has been the most effective for the country in terms of reporting as the regional organisation do assist very much in soliciting the necessary resources required in putting together such reports.

Conservation concepts are promoted in the school curricula though not at significant level. Most of the local NGOs are involved in community awareness and some a very effective network through out the country involving community personnel. Even though there is still to be produced a Biodiversity Strategy, most other sectoral and regional thematic strategies which the country is implementing integrates environment and awareness programmes. Most programmes always have an awareness component.

The public media have ongoing programmes on environment and biodiversity issues running every week. The Solomon Islands Broadcasting Corporation runs two programmes every week. The Solomon Islands daily, The Solomon Star frequently runs features on environment and biodiversity.

The programmes in Medium Term Development Plan integrate awareness and education programmes. Resources however are still very limited.

Please use this box to identify joint initiatives with other Parties, referring back to previous questions as appropriate:

- Forest Genetic Resources with Australia

Please use this box to provide any further comments on matters related to national implementation of the Convention:

As a least developed country, Solomon Islands has tried its best to pursue its commitment under the convention. Resources availability is still a major issue. Institutional weaknesses, has made it difficult even to co-ordinate action at the national level. There is still a lack of a national framework that could guide the implementation at the national level. The office of the national focal point lacks the resources to effectively co-ordinate implementation of the requirements of the convention. Even though donor assistance has been received for some activities, more could be done if new assistance is provided.

The wording of these questions is based on the Articles of the Convention and the decisions of the Conference of the Parties. Please provide information on any difficulties that you have encountered in interpreting the wording of these questions

With the exception of a few questions, the questions are clear and concise and there is not much difficulty in interpreting them.

Please provide similar details if you have completed a Biodiversity Country Study or another report or action plan relevant to the objectives of this Convention

The Forests Resources Inventory has been the only major study done and completed so far. This has been used in many forest management and conservation programmes so far. A National Environmental Management Strategy has been the other more relevant national strategy. A national forestry action plan was in the making but could not be pursued due to the ethnic crisis. The medium term development strategy is the national planning document that incorporates relevant programmes of the government agencies at present.

Please provide details of any national body (e.g. national audit office) that has or will review the implementation of the Convention in your country

The Ministries of Forests, Environment and Conservation; and National Planning will review the implementation of the convention.
